Thai-Meiji Joint Program 2015 at Meiji University hosted by School of Political Science and Economics, Meiji University

Japan is a developed country in terms of economics and technology. Personally I've never been abroad before but people said Japan is the best destination to travel so I thought I would like to see it myself. I've heard the cities are clean, Japanese people are well-disciplined, unique culture, interesting lifestyle and good environment.

Thai-Meiji Joint Program 2015 at School of Political Science and Economics, Meiji University is an interesting program. I think it's such a good opportunity and great experience to study at Meiji University in Japan. And this program provides excursions for students to explore and discover different experiences.

I feel glad and lucky to have joined this program. I was very happy when I was traveling around Tokyo and some other cities, and also having chances to make a new connection with teachers and friends. I would like to say thank you to Meiji University, Srinakharinwirot University and everyone who have supported and looked after me while I was in Japan.

To be a part of this program, I have gained a lot of good experiences and have also learned many new things such as Japanese culture, technology innovations, social economics, political issues and language. Moreover, I have learned Japanese language which is definitely useful for now and in the future.

Joining this short term exchange program, I was able to know more friends and the great things of Japan. I even traveled a lot during that period of time. This program gives students a good opportunity to experience as well as to discover new things, new places and new friends in Japan, a safe and interesting country. Finally, I am very certain that this program will be a good program giving an opportunity to those who would like to study in Japan in the future as well.
