INTERNATIONAL LECTURE

Dr. Ward Peeters

Lecturer in Linguistics,
Monash University (Australia)
Visiting Professor,
Kanda University of International Studies (Japan)

Ward Peeters is a Lecturer in Linguistics at Monash University (Australia) and a Visiting Professor at Kanda University of International Studies (Japan). His main research interests include studying digital discourse in language learning contexts, language acquisition and development, and learning analytics. Ward has coordinated research projects in Australia, Belgium, Japan, the Netherlands and South Africa as part of an extensive study on computer-supported collaborative language learning.

Visualising language learner interaction: The Linguist's point of view

The purpose of this lecture is to help educators and tutors recognise the different processes that are part of collaborative learning in digital contexts. At the same time, the lecture is relevant for students as they can reflect on their learning practice and their own learning needs. The examples given, furthermore, will serve as the basis to discuss both the design of digital spaces for learning and the support mechanisms educators and tutors can provide throughout the learning process of their students.
